This is not a satisfactory solution, the lowering of the roof is not enough for the building to sit in the surrounding landscape. Why have this extra space above the cars in the garage? Why not add some width, I had a look today and the overhang of the roof could extend further and provide 2 storage spaces each side of the garage. the oil tank would need moving or be within the new storage space. This would also protect the risk of extra accommodation or a holiday home in any future plans. There are many garages that suddenly become extra living space.
