Hi Steven,

Hope you are keeping well.

Thank you for the comments and it would be helpful to show the parking on a plan demonstrating that there will be no net loss of parking.

I do not however, accept the comment about the parking being Aldi customers. This parking on the footway occurred before, during and after the store was constructed. As you know only one of the two stores has been occupied so far which means that the car park is rarely full. There is no reason for the customers to Aldi to park on the opposite side of the road, further away from the front door to the store.
