Details of the pre-application advice received your proposal would only result in the loss of the restaurant and would still retain the ground floor fish and chip shop to serve visitors and residents to Robin Hoods Bay. As such the change of use of the upper floor accommodation from restaurant to residential use would not, in my opinion conflict with the adopted policies of the Core Strategy and Development Policies Document in principle. However under Core Policy J (Housing) if your proposal was to convert the upper floors into two flats for permanent, full-time occupation then these would need to be restricted to those in local need by way of our standard local occupancy condition. Under the emerging Local Plan Policy CO8 the same approach would apply. Similarly if short term holiday letting accommodation was proposed then we would look to impose an occupancy restriction so that the flats could not be used as full-time permanent accommodation. Listed building consent will also be required along with planning permission as this will involve material change to the external appearance of the property albeit an improvement.

Yes No

For the purposes of this question, "related to" means related, by birth or otherwise, closely enough that a fair-minded and informed observer, having considered the facts, would conclude that there was bias on the part of the decision-maker in the Local Planning Authority.

Do any of the above statements apply?
