Hi Wendy

Yes it is clearly well sealed, both with the pointing and the new roof so minimal chance of bats using it (fortunately or unfortunately depending on your view!). We'll certainly need to put in a bat informative if ultimately approved as a catch all, but it is minimal risk I think.

Thanks

Elsbeth

Subject: Another Bat Scoping Survey Question

Hi Elspeth

I have an application for conversion of barn to form annexe/holiday letting accommodation together with creation of parking area following removal of kennels at High Farm, Beadlam Rigg, Pockley. Could you take a look at the attached, particularly the supporting information as it has some really useful photos and let me know whether you consider a Bat Scoping Survey is required.

Thanks

Wendy
