We do have samples of the roof tiles and shingle tiles if you needed to see them.

I would be grateful if you could let me know the fee to be paid and let us know if you require any more information.

Kind Regards

Adrian and Amanda Pearson

Description

Elterdale Grey Green slate is quarried using very simple extraction techniques, from the finest slate beds in the Paraopeba Valley near Papagaios. Elterdale Grey Green slate is a natural sedimentary stone with excellent consistency which required the minimum of grading. The natural slates are hand split by experienced craftsmen to produce consistent slates in thickness and texture.

The Grey Green colour of the slate is a very good alternative to the much higher specification Vermont Structural Unfading Green and Westmorland Green slates

The Brazilian slate industry has become one of the major supply sources of natural roofing slate, with Elterdale® Grey Green being produced by a well regarded and internationally backed quarry and production facilities where quality of the finished product and the level of service provided count as the principles of owners. Fully Tested to BSEN12326-1:2004, attaining A1, T1 & S1 certification.

Country of Origin: Brazil

Sizes: 600 x 300mm and 500 x 250mm.

Grades: Prime Only – Nominal Thickness Dependent on Size Specification

A soothing green grey

French Gray is really much more green than grey, but characterfully flits between the two depending on the light and time of day. Taking inspiration from French decoration and wallpapers used in the 19th century, it creates the most relaxed of rooms. This soothing hue is perfect for exterior woodwork and a particular favourite for front doors in our matt Exterior Eggshell, or garden furniture where it sits seamlessly amongst the greenery.
