the council has no objection in principle to the alterations except for the necessity for, and proposed design of the doors. It will look out of place, the councillors some with a personal knowledge of over 50yrs know that a door has never been fixed to this area. Its 'openness' is part of the village's character.

Re: Wedgewood House.

Dear Miss Webster,

I thought you may have difficulty with my writing so here is a typed version.

The Parish Council has no objection in principle to the alterations, except first of all for the necessity of a door(s) and secondly the proposed design of door, which will not be in keeping with that part of the street, it will look out of place. The Councillors some with a personal knowledge of over 50 years are aware that such a door has never been in existence in this area. Its very 'openness' has become part of the village's character.

Yours sincerely,

Patrick Newton
