Appeal Ref: APP/W9500/A/05/1194058

Barn, South-West of Woodbine Cottage, Beck Hole YO22 5LF

- The appeal is made under Section 78 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 against a refusal to grant planning permission.
- The appeal is made by Mark Foyle against the Decision of the North York Moors National Park Authority.
- The application, Ref: NYM/2005/0386/FL, dated 17 May 2005, was refused by Notice dated 19 October 2005.
- The development proposed is a change of use to a holiday cottage.

Decision

1. I dismiss the appeal.

NYM

15 FEB 2006

Reasons

2. The appeal relates to a stone-built barn, consistent - in my view - with the local tradition. The appellant concedes that the barn is in the open countryside. I agree - it, to the south of the grouping of buildings at Beck Hole that are generally about the highway through this hamlet at the foot of the Eller Beck valley. This is a particularly attractive National Park landscape - a wooded hillside to the south-west with rising moor land to the north-east.
3. There are, however, a number of matters here - bearing in mind the location of the barn in relation to Beck Hole. Firstly, Mr Foyle disputes the Authority's view that the barn is isolated. There are 2 detached houses close to the site with garden space about and garage/parking facilities. While, fairly, the Park Authority argues that they are existing, historic and unrelated to the barn - they are present in the countryside close to the site and visible, together with the barn, from the rising land to the north-east of Beck Hole. Secondly, however, the site is about the junction of public footpath/bridleway routes - as indicated by a signpost close to the barn - that includes the Historical Rail Trail. The barn would be visible from about it and from Beck Hole - at a location outside the grouping of buildings at Beck Hole and within an area of open countryside.
4. That, then, takes me to the barn itself and the proposal for it. I saw that part of it was used for the storage of hay and the appellant has not submitted any convincing argument that it is no longer needed, suitable, or potentially available for an agricultural use in this generally moor land area. While existing conditions about the barn are somewhat "untidy", they are not untypical of the wider area.

5. The built elements of the conversion are acceptably designed taking into account the nature of the barn itself - albeit, unavoidably in my view, introducing a limited domestic element. Outside, however, I come to a different assessment. The parking space to the side would, reasonably, require an improvement to that existing to gain access to it. I come to a similar view on the area to the front of the barn. The appellant indicates that this would not be used as a garden, but it would be likely to be maintained. Reasonably, occupants of the conversion would be likely to be "on site" for a significant part of their let. In this attractive National Park location, they would wish to enjoy "sitting-out" with table and chairs - potentially with eating facilities - and at a pleasant frontage (there being little space to the rear of the barn). All this, together with the likely "comings and goings", would introduce a domesticated element to this countryside location outside Beck Hole that I do not consider would be able to be controlled by any reasonable condition. I give considerable weight to the substantial harm that would result to the landscape of the National Park, taking into account the countryside setting of Beck Hole. My balance of judgement is that I should protect the special qualities of this part of the National Park. The proposal would conflict with Policies GP3 (2) and BE15 (1), [(3) as it relates to use], and (7) of the adopted plan. The Authority argues precedent. Any proposal arising would need to be assessed in the light of its specific circumstances as I have done in this case. The Council would have available to it the policies of the local plan ensuring sufficient control. The acceptability of the proposal in this respect does not outweigh the harm I have identified above.

Other Matters

6. I have taken into account all those raised - including the evidence before me that bats do not roost at the site, the presence of overhead electricity lines, as well as my assessment that the limited additional vehicle generation arising from the proposal would not result in any material highway safety concerns. The letting details for the proposal are acceptable. I have also considered correspondence with the Authority at pre-application stage, as well as the unanimous view of the Goathland Parish Council that it had no objection to the proposal. Neither those, nor any other matter raised, outweigh my conclusion that the appeal should be dismissed.

Challenging the Decision in the High Court

Challenging the decision

Appeal decisions are legal documents and, with the exception of very minor slips, we cannot amend or change them once they have been issued. Therefore a decision is final and cannot be reconsidered unless it is successfully challenged in the High Court. If a challenge is successful, we will consider the decision afresh.

Grounds for challenging the decision

A decision cannot be challenged merely because someone disagrees with the Inspector's judgement. For a challenge to be successful you would have to show that the Inspector misinterpreted the law or, for instance, that the inquiry, hearing, site visit or other appeal procedures were not carried out properly, leading to, say, unfair treatment. If a mistake has been made and the Court considers it might have affected the outcome of the appeal it will return the case to us for re-consideration.

Different appeal types

High Court challenges proceed under different legislation depending on the type of appeal and the period allowed for making a challenge varies accordingly. Some important differences are explained below:

Challenges to planning appeal decisions

15 FEB 2006

These are normally applications under Section 288 of the Town & Country Planning Act 1990 to quash decisions into appeals for planning permission (including enforcement appeals allowed under ground (a), deemed application decisions or lawful development certificate appeal decisions). For listed building or conservation area consent appeal decisions, challenges are made under Section 63 of the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. Challenges must be received by the Administrative Court within 42 days (6 weeks) of the date of the decision - this period cannot be extended.

Challenges to enforcement appeal decisions

Enforcement appeal decisions under all grounds [see our booklet 'Making Your Enforcement Appeal'] can be challenged under Section 289 of the Town & Country Planning Act 1990. Listed building or conservation area enforcement appeal decisions can be challenged under Section 65 of the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. To challenge an enforcement decision under Section 289 or Section 65 you must first get the permission of the Court. However, if the Court does not consider that there is an arguable case, it can refuse permission. Applications for permission to make a challenge must be received by the Administrative Court within 28 days of the date of the decision, unless the Court extends this period.

Important Note - This leaflet is intended for guidance only. Because High Court challenges can involve complicated legal proceedings, you may wish to consider taking legal advice from a qualified person such as a solicitor if you intend to proceed or are unsure about any of the guidance in this leaflet. Further information is available from the Administrative Court (see overleaf).

Frequently asked questions

"Who can make a challenge?" – In planning cases, anyone aggrieved by the decision may do so. This can include third parties as well as appellants and councils. In enforcement cases, a challenge can only be made by the appellant, the council or other people with a legal interest in the land – other aggrieved people must apply promptly for judicial review by the Courts (the Administrative Court can tell you more about how to do this – see Further Information).

"How much is it likely to cost me?" – A relatively small administrative charge is made by the Court for processing your challenge (the Administrative Court should be able to give you advice on current fees – see 'Further information'). The legal costs involved in preparing and presenting your case in Court can be considerable though, and if the challenge fails you will usually have to pay our costs as well as your own. However, if the challenge is successful we will normally meet your reasonable legal costs.

"How long will it take?" – This can vary considerably. Although many challenges are decided within six months, some can take longer.

"Do I need to get legal advice?" – You do not have to be legally represented in Court but it is normal to do so, as you may have to deal with complex points of law made by our own legal representative.

"Will a successful challenge reverse the decision?" – Not necessarily. The Court can only require us to reconsider the case and an Inspector may come to the same decision again but for different or expanded reasons.

"What can I do if my challenge fails?" – The decision is final. Although it may be possible to take the case to the Court of Appeal, a compelling argument would have to be put to the Court for the judge to grant permission for you to do this.

Further information about challenging the decision

Further advice about making a High Court challenge can be obtained from the Administrative Court at the Royal Courts of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, Strand, London WC2 2LL, telephone 0207 9476655; Website: www.courtservice.gov.uk

Inspection of appeal documents

We normally keep appeal files for one year after the decision is issued, after which they are destroyed. You can inspect appeal documents at our Bristol offices by contacting us on our General Enquiries number to make an appointment (see 'Contacting us'). We will then ensure that the file is obtained from our storage facility and is ready for you to view. Alternatively, if visiting Bristol would involve a long or difficult journey it may be more convenient to arrange to view your local planning authority's copy of the file, which should be similar to our own.

Council on tribunals

If you have any comments on appeal procedures you can contact the Council on Tribunals, 81 Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1BQ. Telephone 020 7855 5200; website: <http://www.council-on-tribunals.gov.uk/>. However, it cannot become involved with the merits of individual appeals or change an appeal decision.

Our Complaints Procedures

Complaints

We try hard to ensure that everyone who uses the appeal system is satisfied with the service they receive from us. Planning appeals often raise strong feelings and it is inevitable that there will be at least one party who will be disappointed with the outcome of an appeal. This often leads to a complaint, either about the decision itself or the way in which the appeal was handled.

Sometimes complaints arise due to misunderstandings about how the appeal system works. When this happens we will try to explain things as clearly as possible. Sometimes the appellant, the council or a local resident may have difficulty accepting a decision simply because they disagree with it. Although we cannot re-open an appeal to re-consider its merits or add to what the Inspector has said, we will answer any queries about the decision as fully as we can.

Sometimes a complaint is not one we can deal with (for example, complaints about how the council dealt with another similar application), in which case we will explain why and suggest who may be able to deal with the complaint instead.

How we investigate complaints

Inspectors have no further direct involvement in the case once their decision is issued and it is the job of our Quality Assurance Unit to investigate complaints about decisions or an Inspector's conduct. We appreciate that many of our customers will not be experts on the planning system and for some, it will be their one and only experience of it. We also realise that your opinions are important and may be strongly-held.

The Quality Assurance Unit works independently of all of our casework teams. It ensures that all complaints are investigated thoroughly and impartially, and that we reply in clear, straightforward language, avoiding jargon and complicated legal terms. We aim to give a full reply within three weeks wherever possible. To assist our investigations we may need to ask the Inspector or other staff for comments. This helps us to gain as full a picture as possible so that we are better able to decide whether an error has been made. If this is likely to delay our full reply we will quickly let you know.

What we will do if we have made a mistake

Although we aim to give the best service possible, there will unfortunately be times when things go wrong. If a mistake has been made we will write to you explaining what has happened and offer our apologies. The Inspector concerned will be told that the complaint has been upheld.

We also look to see if lessons can be learned from the mistake, such as whether our procedures can be improved upon. Training may also be given so that similar errors can be avoided in future. Minor slips and errors may be corrected under Section 56 of the Planning & Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 but we cannot amend or change in any way the substance of an Inspector's decision.

Who checks our work?

The Government has said that 99% of our decisions should be free from error and has set up an independent body called the Advisory Panel on Standards (APOS) to report on our performance. APOS regularly examines the way we deal with complaints and we must satisfy it that our procedures are fair, thorough and prompt.

INVESTOR IN PEOPLE

Taking it further

If you are not satisfied with the way we have dealt with your complaint you can contact the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration (often referred to as The Ombudsman), who can investigate complaints of maladministration against Government Departments or their Executive Agencies. If you decide to go to the Ombudsman you must do so through an MP. Again, the Ombudsman cannot change the decision.

Frequently asked questions

"Can the decision be reviewed if a mistake has happened?" – Although we can rectify minor slips, we cannot reconsider the evidence the Inspector took into account or the reasoning in the decision. This can only be done following a successful High Court challenge. The enclosed High Court leaflet explains more about this.

"So what is the point of complaining?" – We are keen to learn from our mistakes and try to make sure they do not happen again. Complaints are therefore one way of helping us improve the appeals system.

"Why did an appeal succeed when local residents were all against it?" – Local views are important but they are likely to be more persuasive if based on planning reasons, rather than a basic like or dislike of the proposal. Inspectors have to make up their own minds whether these views justify refusing planning permission.

"What do the terms 'Allowed' and 'Dismissed' mean on the decision?" – 'Allowed' means that Planning Permission has been granted, 'Dismissed' means that it has not.

"How can Inspectors know about local feeling or issues if they don't live in the area?" – Using Inspectors who do not live locally ensures that they have no personal interest in any local issues or any ties with the council or its policies. However, Inspectors will be aware of local views from the representations people have submitted.

"I wrote to you with my views, why didn't the Inspector mention this?" – Inspectors must give reasons for their decision and take into account all views submitted but it is not necessary to list every bit of evidence.

"Why did my appeal fail when similar appeals nearby succeeded?" – Although two cases may be similar, there will always be some aspect of a proposal which is unique. Each case must be decided on its own particular merits.

"I've just lost my appeal, is there anything else I can do to get my permission?" – Perhaps you could change some aspect of your proposal to increase its acceptability. For example, if the Inspector thought your extension would look out of place, could it be re-designed to be more in keeping with its surroundings? If so, you can submit a revised application to the council. Talking to its planning officer about this might help you explore your options.

"What can I do if someone is ignoring a planning condition?" – We cannot intervene as it is the council's responsibility to ensure conditions are complied with. It can investigate and has discretionary powers to take action if a condition is being ignored.

Further information

Each year we publish our Annual Report and Accounts, setting out details of our performance against the targets set for us by Ministers and how we have spent the funds the Government gives us for our work. We publish full statistics of the number of cases dealt with during the preceding year on our website, together with other useful information (see 'Contacting us'). You can also obtain booklets which give details about the appeal process by telephoning our enquiries number.

You can find the latest Advisory Panel on Standards report either by visiting our website or on the ODPM website - www.odpm.gov.uk/
