

Proposed Cattle Grid
Design and Access Statement

Although we have been generally supported in the work we have done renovating the property. There has been slight concern that visitors to the site might just park on the road rather than getting out of their cars to open the gate.

Those that do decide to open the gate will have to temporarily park on the road close to the sharp bend, while they open the gate.

By installing the cattle grid and removing the gate from its hinges, both of the above issues would be solved.

The pedestrian access across part of the new grid means that the existing wall will not have to be altered.
