I forgot to add a comment in my last email about the sink that is below the tap that Mr Kemp is supplying for charitable purposes to dispense water in return for a donation. I appreciate that the sink is on public land, however Mr Kemp is providing a public service, I therefore see no issue in the location of it.

The parish council have no objection to the plaque and I assume no objection to Mr Kemp raising money for charity, however without the sink the water will just spill onto the floor causing both a slip hazard and an unsightly mess. In cold weather still hazard could turn to ice and cause a serious accident.

The pictures of the sink show a neat and tidy installation. I urge the committee to reflect upon this and allow the sink to be kept under the tap to avoid people being injured by slippery wet flagstones and cobbles.
