Dear Sir

I am writing following receiving the amended plans for the application for conversion of barns to form local occupancy dwelling. Our previous objections still stand.

To raise the courtyard and build a wall is detrimental to the character of the open courtyard. It will also impact on our access rights over the courtyard to our beer cellar and oil store. We have recently opened the Everley Cafe, after it was closed for nearly two years, and had fallen into a state of disrepair. It is difficult enough starting a new business in the current economic climate, without having to deal with costly and time consuming access issues to the beer cellar, oil store and holiday cottage.

Your faithfully
David Harrison
